About This Game

Back in the 25th century, Earth launched a generation ship into deep space, with the goal of establishing the first interstellar colony. It dropped out of contact and disappeared, never reaching its destination. Thousands of years later, it has finally been found.

Uncover the mystery of what happened to the final generation aboard the generation ship Mugunghwa by reading through its dead crew's logs, with the help of a spunky AI sidekick! Two pursuable characters. Five endings. A dark visual novel that further extends the non-linear style of Digital: A Love Story in a mystery featuring transhumanism, traditional marriage, loneliness, and cosplay.

Welcome to the future.

The table shakes. Though you know a half dozen mediums' tricks to make that happen, this isn't your doing.

"Father, is that you?" Bastian's wineglass rolls off the edge and shatters on the floor. "Please, Father. I need to know what to do."

DEATH

There's no sound, no one speaking aloud, but everyone hears it.

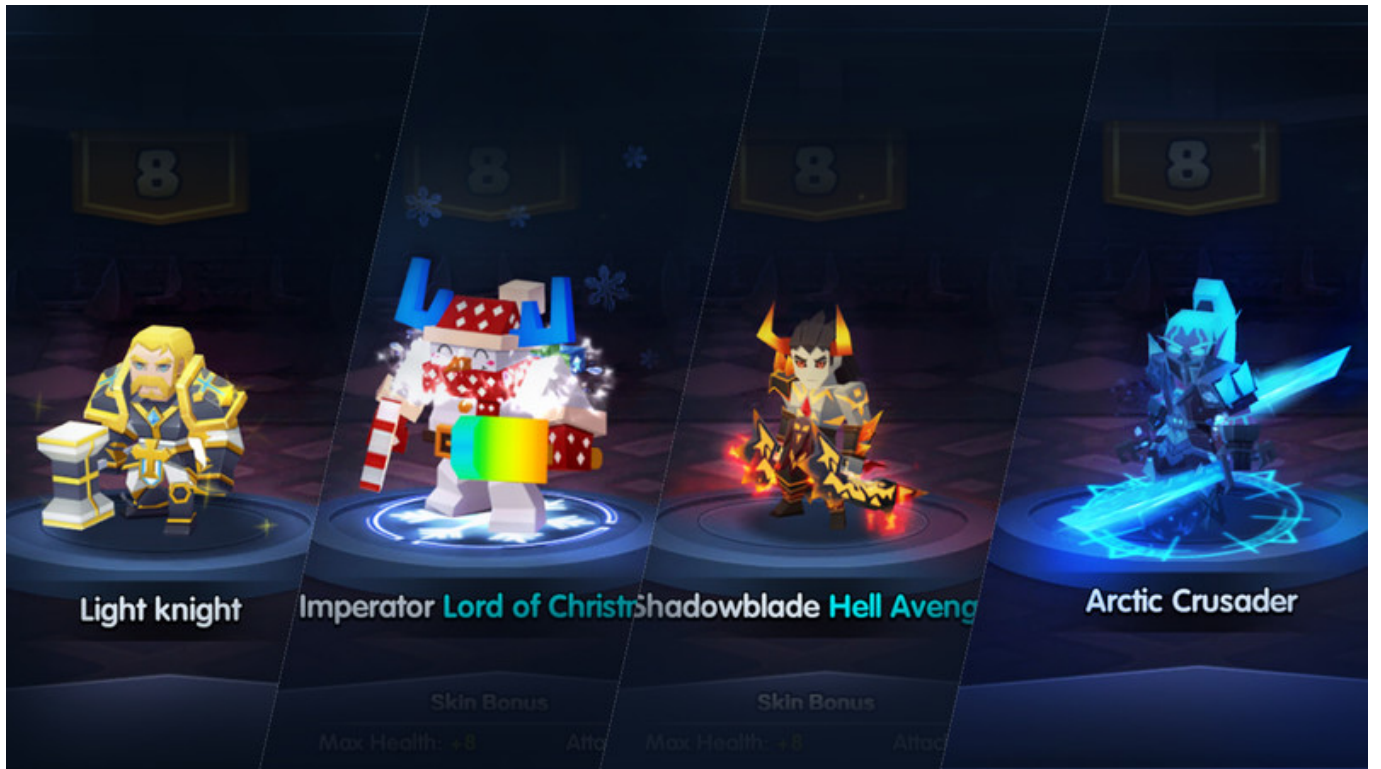

Bastian frantically casts about the room, looking for the origin of the voice. "What do you mean? Father? Please, I don't understand!"

DEATHDEATHDEATHDEATHDEATH

The room grows hotter. Across from you, a white-haired woman's eyes roll back in her head. Fascinated as your audience is, no one moves to catch her when she faints. Wild-eyed, Bastian turns to you. "Henry, is this your doing? I don't...this isn't what I intended!"

You shake your head, lacking the vocabulary to explain. Your gut twists in horror as everything on the table lifts into the air. This isn't normal, not by any means.

- I command the spirit—or whatever it is—to leave.
- I cling to my connection to the spirit world, looking for answers.
- I order everyone out. It's too dangerous for them in here.
